

Abstract of the Disclosure

An electrostatic gripper for moving wafers includes bipolar electrodes with an insulating layer of zirconium oxide, which are positioned on a circuit board. The gripper is produced by a pressing process and can be operated with a DC voltage of less than 900 V. As a result, heating of the wafer is almost completely prevented even under a vacuum.